Co-Founder & COO @ Versity by XTICH | Full Stack Developer |
Exploring AI in Business Ops
Davangere, Karnataka, India

Summary

I'm a full stack developer with a growing focus on AI/ML, currently co-building Versity by XTICH — a B2B startup modernizing uniform solutions for schools and PU colleges. As Co-Founder & COO, I run the operational engine of the business: manufacturing, order management, and logistics — making sure every deal my co-founder closes gets delivered on time and to spec. It's taught me a lot about building systems that scale beyond spreadsheets and gut feel. On the tech side, I'm exploring how AI can streamline operations-heavy businesses like ours — from production tracking to demand forecasting — and I'm always open to conversations at the intersection of software, AI, and real-world operations. Currently expanding Versity's footprint with my co-founder, one institution at a time. Open to connecting with fellow builders, developers, and anyone working on B2B or ed-tech problems.

Davanagere

Co-founded Versity by XTICH, a B2B venture delivering modern uniform solutions to schools and PU colleges.

Own end-to-end operations: manufacturing coordination, order management, and logistics for institutional clients.

Manage the primary manufacturer relationship — from customization specs and timelines to quality control across every production batch.

Built and maintain the order tracking system covering every deal from confirmation to delivery.

Set up Versity's operational backbone using Notion, including SOPs for repeat workflows and vendor management.

Handle delivery logistics and packaging for partner institutions, ensuring on-time, quality fulfillment.

Support creative and pitch materials (mockups, lookbooks) alongside co-founder.

Partner closely with the CEO on strategy — while he drives sales and brand vision, I ensure everything sold gets delivered flawlessly.
